

The McGraw-Hill Companies

Homeland Security

contents

DEPARTMENTS

04 Publisher's Note

Security leaders must stay engaged.

06 Editor's Note

Our two greatest enemies may be fear and complacency.

08 Editor's Note

U.S. should not dictate air security requirements.

36 In My Opinion

The private sector needs to be more involved in homeland security.

38 Product Reviews

New technologies and tools of the trade.

Cover photo by Cornel M. Panov, LAPD

Visit The McGraw-Hill Companies' comprehensive homeland security intelligence network:
www.mcgraw-hillhomelandsecurity.com

FEATURES

10 safeguarding cities

Protecting the City of Angels

LAPD Chief William Bratton makes a case for devoting more manpower to his city's security missions.

By Barry Rosenberg

14 first-responders

A Tale of Two Fire Departments

The fire departments of New York City and Arlington County, Va. learned important lessons from Sept. 11.

By Jim Mathews

20 mayors

Cities Still Wait for Federal Homeland Security Funding

Mayors are scrambling to meet security mandates, with little help from Washington thus far.

By Peter A. Buxbaum

26 airports

Unmet Airport Security Needs

Several emerging programs and technologies are designed to make airports safer.

By Christopher Fotos

30 energy

Massive Blackout Highlights Power Grid Weakness

Terrorists did not deny electricity to millions of people last year, but system vulnerabilities might make it possible.

By Patricia Irwin